

CONDUIT

The Newsletter for License Coordinators of TeachingBooks.net

May 2005

Vol. 1, No. 1

Welcome to our new way of communicating with the on-site coordinators of TeachingBooks licenses!

Our goals with this concise, monthly newsletter are:

- 1) To alert you to relevant items that will ultimately help your license get the most out of TeachingBooks,
- 2) To solicit your suggestions to guide the support we offer.

Our hope is that this newsletter will encourage dialogue, with information flowing

- From TeachingBooks—sharing news and insights into our future directions,
- From you—offering feedback and recommendations.

News from TeachingBooks

For this first newsletter, we'd like to introduce our staff. That way, when you write or call, you'll know with whom you're communicating!

- Nick Glass, Founder and Principal, started TeachingBooks in 2000 with his passion and desire to utilize the Internet to bring authors and book resources to everybody.
- Virginia Harrison, Editorial Director, has been Nick's long-time colleague and friend, and has been a sounding-board and editor at TeachingBooks since 2002.
- John H. Moore, Operations Manager, brought his expertise in operations and technology systems to the company in Spring 2004.
- Carin Bringelson, Information Manager, started in Fall 2004, adding her perspective as a librarian to the mix.

Let us hear from you: Have you used your Getting Started With TeachingBooks CD-ROM?

You recently received TeachingBooks' first-ever CD-ROM, packed with training and support materials. We are interested in your reactions to it. Tell us what you think, and with your permission, we'll print your experiences and suggestions in the next newsletter. Let us know:

- With whom have you shared the CD-ROM?
- Where have you shown it?
- What were people's reactions?
- Was there something missing that you would like to have seen? If so, what?

To thank you for taking the time to respond to our questions, we'd like to send you a free book. Just contact us by

- Calling 1-800-596-0710, or
- Emailing carin@TeachingBooks.net

Thanks for your feedback—we enjoy partnering with you as we all generate enthusiasm for books and reading!
