The Newsletter for License Coordinators of TeachingBooks.net

September 2009 Vol. 5, No. 9

*This monthly newsletter provides the inside scoop on how you can maximize the use of TeachingBooks.
Please forward pertinent information to your colleagues.*

Enhancements Keep Coming

Thank you for your patience while we re-write our programming with the ultimate goal of allowing you to customize our multimedia author and book materials. We want TeachingBooks.net to directly support your reading and library initiatives! Currently, we are completing the sign-in changes. Soon a new support area with common uses, teachers tips, resource ratings, and more will keep you and your colleagues aware of the depth and possibilities that abound with TeachingBooks.net.

Monthly Articles Support Your Use of TeachingBooks Available in Our Blog

Each month we publish articles with major library journals. Through these, we show how to integrate multimedia, online resources into your work while also giving a peak into the worlds of authors and illustrators. The articles are accessible from our blog by going to <http://teachingbooks.net/blog> then clicking on one of the following categories:

- “Insights” Column (<http://forum.teachingbooks.net/?cat=72>) with School Library Monthly
- “Nick’s Picks” Column (<http://forum.teachingbooks.net/?cat=64>) with School Library Journal
- Guest Author/Illustrator Posts (<http://forum.teachingbooks.net/?cat=63>) with School Library Journal

Reading Lists Continually Updated

You have single-click access to resources that support this school year’s state reading lists. Just click the white button in the middle of the homepage labeled “Reading List Resources.” As new multimedia resources are added to the TeachingBooks database, they are automatically included in the Search Results for each list.

For information on how to add the reading lists that your institution uses, see:

“What’s New Webinar” Features the New Look of Sign-in

On Thursday of this week, a 10-minute webinar with Nick Glass, TeachingBooks Founder, will include a review of the new sign-in options. After the short presentation, feel free to participate in the phone Q&A.

Thursday, September 24th: 3pm Eastern Time, 12pm Pacific Time

All you need to do is go to: <http://www.teachingbooks.net/monthlywebinar>

If you can’t make this month’s webinar, watch the recording we’ll distribute after the webinar.
